- There are currently in Yugoslavia approximately 7,000 Albanian refugees, 6,000 of whom are estimated to be fit for combat. The majority of these men are opposed to Communism in any form. A pro-Tito "League of Albanian Refugees" has been established with headquarters in Prizren, made up of approximately 200 refugees who have joined either because of pressure exerted upon them, or for fear of reprisal. Of this number approximately 80 members can be considered to have pro-Tito sympathies.
- 3. The numerous Albanians seeking refuge in Yugoslavia are received and given generous treatment by the current regime, regardless of their political alignment, although Albanian nationalists, even if treated courteously, are closely surveilled. The role of host is played by pro-Tito Albanian compatriots, in whom the Yugoslav Government places considerable trust.
- The League of Albanian Refugees in Prizren is headed by Apostol Tenefi, a mative of Korce, and a loyal follower of Koci Koxe. However, the "gray eminence" within the League is General Dusan Mugosa, a Montenegrin. He was the organizer of the Albanian Communist Party, and has a fairly fluent command of the Albanian language. Another leading man within the League is Lutfi Spahiu, a former high official of Prizren, Spahiu, who is not considered to be a Communist, is said to have nationalist sympathies, and to have an innate desire to contribute to the Albanian cause by taking advantage of the privileged position which he has established for himself appear. of the privileged position which he has established for himself among Yugo-slav authorities. In this connection, he is said to have indirectly assisted numerous Albanian nationalists who sought refuge in Yugoslavia. Kol Shiroka, a barber by profession, and an adventurer who achieved personal gain through Communism, likewise ranks among the leading personalities of the League of Albanian Refugees.

- 5. Other agents of the pro-Tito League of Albanian Refugees entrusted with duties of management and surveillance are listed as follows:
 - a. Major Bajo Djuhanovic, at one time political organizer of the Korce Division. He currently occupies an important position in the General Headquarters of the Yugoslav Army in Belgrade;
 - b. Professor Rada Simenovic, a woman, councilor in the Ministry for Public Information for the Albanian minority (sic). She commutes between Bar and Chrid, occupying herself with Albanian refugees whose language she speaks very well; and
 - c. Various other UDB agents in charge of interrogation of Albanian refugees for information on the political, military and economic situation. Upon some occasions, such agents will accompany groups of nationalists who illegally cross the border into Albania for purposes of surveillance and in order to accompany to safety those who run the risk of being arrested by the Howha Government. The most noted among these agents are Staf Lleshi, an Albanian, who is a second lieutenant in the UDB of Debar; and Shefki Lleshi, UDB commander in Debar. These agents, as well as Gani Seferi, Khetan Kaleshi, Ali Daci, and Refik Kaja, operate in the area of Ohrid, Debar, and Kukes. The agents Nzif (sic) Bajrami and Shazi Fida, operate on the other hand in the area of Buene, Ulcini, Han i Hottit, and Titograd. Other Albanians who collaborate with Tugoslav anthorities and enjoy a fair amount of prestige are Nik Sokoli, Tahir Hoxha, Qazim Lushnja, Ferid Maliqi and Said Rama.
- 6. Training courses headed by leyal UDB officials are given in Yngoslavia for Albanian party (sic) leaders and agitators for the purpose of replacing the government of Enver Hoxha (at some time in the future when Yugoslavia hopes that this regime will be overthrown) with a pro-Tito man who will be favorable to the inclusion of Albania as an additional republic in the Federated Peoples Republics of Yugoslavia. The training center in Danilovgrad, Mentenegro, is headed by Capt. Pero Musanovic and Lt. Vido Ivanovic. The center at Gucij, which is approximately seven kilometers from the Albanian border, is headed by Capt. Gjoka Masaleri. The center in Djakovo is headed by Hysen Prisha, and has currently six trainees. The center in Titograd has currently 19 trainees. Guerrilla warfare is taught at Kosovska Mitrovica, Pristina, Prizren and Ohrid. Courses for parachutists are likewise given at Kosovska Mitrovica.
